Cycle defined by drought and exceptionally high temperatures. The autumn and winter were dry, with one third of the average rainfall for this period. It did not rain until the beginning of April, days before bud break, which was uniform. In May the first heat wave affected flowering, with problems of coulure. The weather continued hot and dry until mid-August, when cooler nights and thunderstorms softened ripening conditions until the harvest that began on the 29 August.

TASTING

Nuanced and floral nose with fine aromas of red fruit. Accessible and generous, with round tannins and restrained structure.
